1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The invention is directed to method of automatically installing printer driver and automatically configured assigned printer when a user logs onto a client station in the network.

As point out by the applicant, in the reply filed on 9/1/2005, the closest prior art Gase (US 5,580,177) disclose a method for centrally updating printer drivers, but it fundamentally differs because it is done with each print request. With Gase 177, printers broadcast their availability to a server, and when a user selects an available printer the server 16 determines whether the driver is the most updated driver (Col. 4 lines 10-19). The present invention is not a print request driver update routine, it is a printer-versus-authorized user management protocol to centrally configure and manage each user's printer environment based on group membership, user name, terminal name and computer name. Gase 177 makes no attempt to manage the printer environment based on user-authorization data at user login. The Examiner acknowledges this, noting that Gase does not disclose expressly defining all groups that a user belongs to when the user logs onto the network, or querying the printer database to establish all printers that have been assigned.

The applicant further presents persuasive argument on page 5-7, remarks in the reply filed on 9/1/2005.

2. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably
